AMERICAN ART IN MINIATURE

Friday, November 3, 2006 marked the opening of the American Art in Miniature show & sale at the Gilcrease Museum in Tulsa, Oklahoma with a Patron Preview at 6:00 PM followed by a silent auction at 7:00 PM.

William Hagerman's 8" x 10" oil painting "Cottonwoods, Near Dawson, New Mexico" was one of nearly 200 pieces of art on display and quickly sold for $1500.00 which was $500.00 over the listed price of $1000.00.

The painting was started on location in the early morning hours near the town of Cimarron, New Mexico. Dawson, New Mexico is a ghost town. Today, the cemetery is all that is left of the one time booming community.

American Plains Artists 22nd Annual Juried Exhibit

October 6, through November 19, 2006 the gallery walls of the Great Plains Art Museum in Lincoln, Nebraska were filled with representational art depicting the landscape, wildlife, peoples and way of life on the plains. William Hagerman's painting "Where the Plains Meet the Rockies" a 16" x 24" oil painting received a second place award from Reece Summers, the museum curator who served as juror for the show. Additionally the image was used as a banner sign and served as cover art for the APA's show invitation.

The painting will also be included in the Haley Library & History Center Show and Sale opening Dec. 7, 2006.

Watercolors did you say?

Yes, it's true. After many years of oil painting William Hagerman has ventured into watercolor painting. The painting above a 14" x 20" watercolor is one of five that will be featured at the Haley Library and History Center Art Show and Sale.

William enjoyed the departure from the oil paints and is excited to showcase these new works which compliment his oil paintings and will give his collectors a new medium to enjoy.

Art Show at the Haley Library & History Center
